CAMPBELL CASE

It Will Likely Be Reported from Senate Committee To-Day. The Senate Committee for Courts of Justice will meet this afternoon at 3 o'clock to take up the Campbell case and to endeavor in some way to arrive at a report, which they hope to lay before the Senate to-morrow. The contention that the House has proceeded irregularly with the case will be pressed by those holding to that view, and some way out of the tangle will be sought by all. A prominent Senator, who himself looks upon the House action as irregular, has declared that the omission alleged against the House can be remedied by sending the resolution back to that body to be properly passed. The report of the Senate committee will be looked for with great interest.

INSURANCE HEARING

Bruce Bill to Re-Enact Wharton Law Up To-Day. The Senate Committee on General Laws will meet this morning at 10 o'clock for the purpose of considering the bill offered by Senator R. P. Bruce, of Wise, designed to re-enact the Wharton law, which was recently repealed, which prevented insurance companies from getting together for the purpose of fixing rates upon the assured. The bill will be advocated by Senator Bruce, and a great many fire insurance companies will likely be called upon to give evidence in support of the bill. The bill is also represented by counsel, and a lively meeting is anticipated.

FERTILIZER BULLETINS

Thirty Thousand Sent Out to the Farmers of the State. Thirty thousand fertilizer bulletins have just been sent to the farmers of the State by Commissioner of Agriculture Kolbert. These bulletins give the analysis, as determined in the department laboratory, of the brands of fertilizer offered for sale in this State, and compare the percentage found with that guaranteed by the manufacturers of the goods. The bulletins are highly valued by the farmers, for these published analyses are safeguard to them, being the only means by which the purchaser can ascertain whether the fertilizers come up to the standard claimed for them by the dealers. Farmers all over the State now avail themselves of the protection afforded them by the Department of Agriculture, and the quarterly bulletins are watched for with eager interest.

CORPORATION BILL PASSED

Senate Adopts Measure With Some Amendments.

JAMESTOWN BILL TO-DAY

House Refuses to Engross Rice Bill to Establish State Highway Commission and Advances Measure to Repay James E. Phillips.

The most interesting matter dealt with in the Legislature yesterday was the bill relating to the organization and government of corporations, which was passed by the Senate without material amendment and practically as it was reported from the committee. The bill now goes to the House for concurrence in the Senate amendments. Its final passage will be welcomed here, as upon it depends the progress of the Corporation Commission with its work.

The Jamestown Exposition bill comes up as a special order to-day, and its passage by a safe majority is foreshadowed. There were a number of bills offered in both houses, but they are mainly of local interest.

The House disposed of a great deal of work, though most of it related to advancing bills on the calendar.

The Attorney-General submitted an opinion, which was asked for by the House, declaring that the Constitution did not require the State Board of Education to adopt uniform text-books for the various localities of the State, and that the matter was one for the Board and not the Legislature to deal with.

The Rice bill, to create a State highway commission, was dismissed, and the measure to allow $5,000 to James E. Phillips, of Richmond, for losses incurred on a contract for work at the University of Virginia, was engrossed.

The Senate.

The Senate yesterday took up as a special order the measure known as House bill No. 102, as reported from the Committee on Courts of Justice and the Committee on Judiciary amendments thereto. The entire law book of the session was consumed in consideration of the bill, which was passed as reported. The bill will now go to the House for concurrence in the Senate amendments, the substance of which have been published in the Times-Dispatch.

The Senate adopted the measure practically as it came from its committee, voting down the few propositions to amend made by Senators. Mr. Anderson, of Richmond city, proposed to strike out of the bill the provision which required judges to certify whether the charter had been drawn according to law before submission to the Corporation Commission, through which, under the provisions of the Constitution, all charters must issue. His motion, he said, was based on three grounds, viz: First, the needless complications involved in the granting of the charter under this plan; second, its doubtful constitutionality; and, third, its interference with the business of the Corporation Commission. The Senate gave the Corporation Commission all authority in the matter; third, there has never been advance of any reason except that by putting the provision in, country lawyers may make a fee.

Messrs. McIlwaine, Barksdale and others opposed the proposition to strike out, and the Senate declined to agree to the motion.

The bill was then passed as amended. Several bills were introduced and referred. Here are the titles: By Mr. Mann: To amend the act to prevent trespassing on the property of railroads. By Mr. Chapman: To amend the Code in relation to violations of the Sabbath and the punishment therefor. By Mr. Sale: In relation to the penalty for selling liquor when the vote is against license, and in relation to distillers and manufacturers selling under such circumstances.

By Mr. Moon: To establish a dispensary for the poor of Scottsville. Mr. Sale, of Norfolk city, offered, by request, a bill entitled "an act concerning the militia of the State of Virginia." The bill is referred to in detail elsewhere. It went to the Committee on General Laws, and it is the opinion of some members that the bill will never be reported.

Mr. Ople, for the Committee for Public Institutions and Education, reported without amendment the Senate bill to allow insane persons to be confined to private hospitals and sanitariums.

The House.

The House was called to order at 10 o'clock by Speaker Rynn, and prayer was offered by Rev. W. B. Beacham, of Broad Street Methodist Church. On motion of Mr. West, the privileges of the floor were extended to Hon. Malcolm McConnell, of the Legislature of Pennsylvania, and the distinguished visitor was accorded a warm welcome by his members.

The Speaker laid before the House an opinion of the Attorney-General, in answer to a resolution of the House on the subject of the powers and duties of the State Board of Education in relation to the selection of text-books for the public schools. The questions propounded were, whether under the Constitution the Board was required to select a uniform list of text-books for all the cities and counties of the Commonwealth, and if not, whether it was in the province of the General Assembly to so provide.

The opinion sets forth that the Constitution leaves the entire matter in the control of the State Board, and that it does not give the Legislature any supervision of the subject whatever. The opinion expresses the belief, however, that where it shall be found consistent with the public good, the Board will prefer to select a single list for all the counties and cities.

GOOD ROADS BILL. The calendar was taken up, and a great many bills of more or less public interest were ordered to their engrossment. The bill of Mr. Rice to create a State highway commission, for the purpose of arousing public sentiment in favor of good roads, caused some discussion, and the measure was opposed by Mr. Hoaz, of Albemarle, and Mr. Gent, of Russell, who declared that they were opposed to the creation of a new office, the bill authorizing the appointment of a highway engineer. Mr. Rice defended his bill in a brief speech, in which he declared that some legislation on this line was needed, and that his bill went a long way in the right direction.

Mr. Lester, who is a consistent fighter for good roads, came to the rescue of Mr. Rice, and he made an elaborate argument on the subject, contending that the bill should be passed by all means, and that it would do more good than any other measure. Mr. Lester followed in opposition, and contended for local control by the counties of the State.

CLEVELAND PAYS A HIGH TRIBUTE

Speaks of His Esteem for the Late Mr. William H. Cullingworth.

The following is a copy of a letter relative to the death of Mr. W. H. Cullingworth, written by ex-President Cleveland and addressed to a brother of the deceased gentleman:

Princeton, N. J., April 18, 1903. J. N. Cullingworth, Esq., Richmond, Va. My Dear Sir—I desire to thank you for your letter of March 31st and for the photograph you enclosed of your brother, intelligence of whose death had reached me before the receipt of your letter.

Of course, I remember him very well, and I entertained for him especial regard and esteem. The performance of his official duties in the office to which I appointed him during my first term as President satisfied me beyond a doubt that his responsibility in my second term would be for the good of the public service as well as to the satisfaction of the patrons of the postoffice at Richmond. His life and the expressions of universal affection and regret which have followed his death furnish conclusive proof that after all it pays to be an honest, kind and patriotic citizen.

Yours very truly,
GROVER CLEVELAND.
